Federal funds sought for Belle Glade jobs

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - Belle Glade is seeking its share of federal dollars earmarked for the creation of jobs.

City Planning Director Remar M. Harvin has been authorized by the city commission to approach Palm Beach County authorities, the local distributor of the county's share of the money, with a list of proposed projects the city would like to see funded under the Emergency Jobs bill signed into law May 18, 1983 by Ronald Reagan.

Those projects are supposed to include sidewalk construction and improvements, a clean-up project and construction of a tot lot.

Harvin had approached the commission asking for permission to seek funds through the bill for the sidewalk and clean-up projects, and a tree-planting project in the city's neighborhood strategy area (NSA) in the blighted southwest section had hope.

The sidewalk project and clean-up gained the commission's approval, but the tree project, estimated to cost about $61,000 by Harvin, drew several objections from Mayor Thomas L. Altman who felt it would be a misuse of public funds.

Altman also objected to using the funds for the clean-up project, but assented to that project when Commissioner George Goforth moved to drop the tree-planting project in favor of a tot lot, a project Altman suggested as a more favorable alternative.

Harvin said the legislation provided the funds for projects that will create jobs for those unemployed between 18 and 26 weeks from March 24 of this year.

The projects are supposed to be of "lasting value" and services to indigent, or poor, people in the city or area they are completed, Harvin told the commission.

Palm Beach County will receive $1,422,000 of the $4.65 billion appropriated for the program.

Altman said he objected to the clean-up and tree planting projects because he didn't think they represented a prudent use of tax dollars.

"One of the things we're criticized for is the stewardship of government programs," said Altman. "I don't think that's responsible use of public money, whether it is city, county or federal revenue."

"Then how're we gonna get it cleaned up?" asked Commissioner William A. Grear. "Yeah, it needs cleaning up. That's for certain."

Altman said that, if faced with the option of using the same amount of city funds for a clean-up or using the money for another project, he probably would vote for the clean-up and tree projects.

Goforth said he agreed, but pointed out that federal regulations restrict how the city can and can't use the funds. He added he didn't think the clean-up was such a bad idea.

"That's one of the biggest complaints we have," he said.

"We can do something to clean that area up. I just that area of town needs cleaning up."

Altman asked if the clean-up would be of lasting value, as dictated by the bill approved by Congress.

Goforth said he felt it would be of lasting value and added that if the city built a house for someone under the community development program, the house would be of lasting value only if the person who moved in maintained it.

Harvin said he checked with Housing and Urban Development and was told the clean-up project could qualify for the funds.

"It's a very good way to make an impact out here," said Goforth. "Cleaning it up. And the (tree project) might give them a little pride in keeping it that way."

Harvin had approached the commission with three projects, but the commission dropped the proposed third request for a tree planting project in favor of a recommendation for a tot lot in the NSA.

Harvin had asked for permission to seek $187,261 from the county for three projects. About $62,600 of that would have been in salaries to create 19 jobs.

The first project was to ask for funding for a sidewalk construction project on SW Avenue F, NW Fifth Street and NW Sixth Street.

That project would have cost $99,152 and created six new jobs.

The commission asked Harvin to request $150,000 for sidewalk construction and improvements instead.

The second project Harvin presented to the commission for consideration was a two-phase clean-up project for the WeeCare and municipal complex areas.

Each area would have taken 20 days to clean up at a cost of $13,554, said Harvin.

The total cost would have been $27,109.40 and it would have created eight jobs over a 40 day period, said Harvin. About $12,694 would have been spent on salaries.

The commission approved Harvin's request to seek funding for that project.

It turned down his request for permission to seek funding for the tree planting project, the final project on his list.

That project would have cost about $60,000 and would have created five jobs at a cost of $19,800, Harvin estimated.

The commission instead asked him to seek $150,000 for sidewalk projects, and additional funds for the clean-up and tot lot projects.

Harvin said he needed permission to seek funding through the program in time to approach the county at its June 7 hearing on proposals for the funds.

He said the 13 cities which participate in the county administered Community Development program are eligible to participate in the jobs program.

Altman pointed out that Belle Glade is responsible for about 14 percent of the county's annual Community Development budget, and that the amount Harvin was seek-

Dry May helps lower water

The waters in Lake Okechobee, setting records earlier in the year and causing concern among water management officials over the danger of floods this summer, receded below the 15.5 feet level established as a cap for the beginning of the wet season.

According to Joe Schweigart of the South Florida Water Management District, the water level in Lake Okechobee Tuesday, May 31, was 15.31 feet above mean sea level.

District officials had hoped earlier this year to bring the water level down from over 18 feet in February to 15.5 by June 1, the advent of the hurricane and wet season.

The United States Army Corps of Engineers has been discharging water from the lake through the St. Lucie estuary in the east and the Caloosahatchee River in the west all spring in an effort to lower the swelled water level. Those discharges recently stopped, said Schweigart, who added the district and corps are now more concerned with keeping the lake level between 13.5 feet and 15.5 feet through the 1983 wet season.

The lake level was high early this year after an unusually rainy dry season dumped record volumes of water on south and central Florida.

According to Schweigart, a dry May helped the corps and district in their efforts to lower the lake

Armed robbery results in arrests

SOUTH BAY - The armed robbery of a gas station in South Bay Saturday afternoon resulted in the arrests of two New York state residents in Hendry County, according to police reports.

According to the reports, the Exxon gasoline station located at 105 US 27 South in South Bay was robbed at gunpoint at about 2:44 p.m. Saturday, May 28.

Mary M. Waters, a station employee, told police two individuals driving a blue Toyota had stopped and asked for directions to Sarasota. She apparently gave the individuals direction while one of them, a man wearing a brown shirt and blue jeans, drew a map.

He approached a telephone after receiving the directions and asked for a nickel. Waters apparently told the man the phone cost a quarter and he pulled out a nickel-plated gun and demanded money.

Correction

PAHOKEE - It was erroneously reported in the Herald-Observer last week that Pahokee City Councilman Jon Mock voted against the motion to elect Ada Bush chairman of the council.

Mock didn't vote against Bush's appointment, and her election as chairman carried unanimously.

We regret the error.

After 55 years

Pioneer building vacated

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - Pioneer Motor Sales move earlier this week left the old Pioneer building on Main Street vacant for the first time in its 55 year history.

It's one of the oldest buildings in town. From its perch at the corner of Main Street and SW Avenue B, its occupants could see the town grow and change.

From vegetables to sugar and dirt roads to state road 80 (7), Pioneer Motors bore witness to the change in the Glades brought on by the people.

It and the Fears Hotel, two doors to the north, are the only survivors of the killer hurricane of 1928.

Pioneer Motors moved into the facility in 1928 when the company's owner built the structure with second hand lumber he acquired in trips to West Palm Beach, according to S.C. Pate, the current owner of the business.

The owner and founder of the business was Lawrence Will, who would later write several books on the history of the Glades.

Will wrote those histories in a small apartment in the north-east corner of the second floor of the Pioneer building.

Those rooms remain as he left them, with a table and chair set in the middle of the front room and a sofa in the corner where he slept.

Pate came to work for Will in 1938 for $10 a week and now owns the business. He too had an apartment on the second floor of the building.

Several individuals rented rooms from Will, according to Pate, including a pair of accountants who had offices in the building.

Pate paid Will $2 a week for his single-room down the hall from the Will's apartment.

The large rear area on the second floor didn't exist then. Pate added that later for enough, instead, a porch in the rear led to two bathrooms, one for ladies and one for men, and the stairs.

"Mr. Will didn't even have a private bathroom," said Pate.

The Pioneer building housed the first bus station in the Glades. Pate said he recalls seeing people form lines out to the street to purchase tickets.

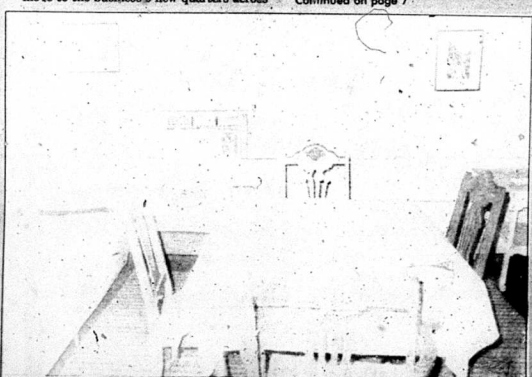

"Twenty-five cents to Pahokee, a buck-and-a-half to West Palm," said Pate, who still has the counter Will used to sell tickets from. The counter is making the move to the business's new quarters across the street.

The business has changed over the years. When Will owned Pioneer Motor Sales, it sold Dodge automobiles and gasoline. As a matter of fact, when the 1928 hurricane was approaching, many Belle Glade residents went to Pioneer Motors to gas up their cars and hit the road before the storm struck.

Will wrote about that hurricane in a book, "Okeechobee Hurricane." That book and several others were written in the apartment he kept above Pioneer Motors.

Who grows the most?

Counties registering the highest value of farm products per farm were in south Florida. In 1976, Palm Beach farm production averaged $684,745 per farm, followed by Martin ($295,816), Hendry ($269,140), Collier ($207,174) and Okechobee ($190,676).

Farms averaging the lowest value of production were in west Florida: Bay ($13,574).

Wakulla ($12,843), Taylor ($11,616), Liberty ($9,224) and Franklin ($7,691).

Overall, farm production in Florida averaged $69,148 per farm. In 1980, farm wage and salary employees comprised fewer than two percent of all wage and salary employees in Florida. In three counties, however, farm employees accounted for more than 30 percent of wage and salary employment: Glades (39 percent), Hendry (36 percent) and Okechobee (32 percent). Eighteen counties reported fewer than one percent.

Which counties produce the most oranges? In 1980-81, Polk County produced 46.6 million boxes, Lake (29.7 million), St. Lucie (19.7 million), Indian River (15.2 million) and Hardee (13.8 million).

In 1981, in six counties more than five percent of farmland was owned by nonresident aliens: Dade (19 percent), Manatee (15 percent), Hardee (8 percent), Gilchrist (7 percent), Hillsborough (6 percent) and Walton (5 percent). In the state, approximately two percent of farmland was owned by nonresident aliens.

The body was a dummy

A fisherman thought he had spotted a body on a canal bank Saturday, May 28. And sheriffs deputies from two counties thought so too, for a while.

But the body turned out to be a dummy, dressed in a long sleeve shirt, pants, and boots. The Hendry County Sheriff's Department was notified about 8 p.m. of the suspected body, but upon arriving on the scene determined that they were about 1 1/2 miles inside

Palm Beach County off Poyne Lisa Road. The Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department crime scene unit was then called in.

The unit recorded details of the area and took photographs. Only when they attempted to move the dummy did they realize that it was not a body. One Palm Beach investigator speculated that the dummy fell off a truck returning Haitian workers from the field. Haitians often decorate their trucks in this manner, he said.

Waters opened the desk and the man allegedly grabbed over $200 in cash and several credit card receipts.

The man demanded more money and was told the station desk was mostly a credit card business.

The robber and his companion, a woman with dark hair and dark blue gym shorts, got back in the car and drove north towards Hendry County.

South Bay Police Officers Sil Pileggi and Al Cooper were called to the scene and drove to the Hendry County line without finding the automobile and suspects.

Pileggi went back to the scene and was filling out his report when he was notified that the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office had stopped a car with two suspects in it at the South Bay levee.

Soon afterwards, he was told the Hendry County Sheriff's Office had also stopped a car with suspects in it.

Waters went to the levee and told the officers the individuals in that vehicle weren't the ones who robbed the store, and she was driven to Hendry County.

While this was happening, Hendry County officers had determined the vehicle matched the description of a vehicle stolen at gunpoint in Broward County. The individuals in it matched the description of the suspects.

Waters identified the two as the ones who robbed the store and they were arrested and charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault with a gun.

They are John M. Spero, 20, of Astoria, New York and Jacqueline Josephine Cerniglia, 18, of Jackson Heights. Spero is also facing charges in Broward stemming from the theft of the automobile.

Lake level

level. May was unseasonably dry in the Glades area this year.

"That gave us some time to, you know, get our reservoirs in shape for the hurricane season," said Schweigart. "We're in much better shape than during the so-called 'dry season.' It (the dry May) came at a time when, of course, we could take it."

Last year, when south Florida was suffering from a long drought, the area was deluged with rain for the last two weeks of May, starting the cycle which eventually brought the drought-stricken lake to record levels.

"If we would have had the same type of May last year as we had this year, it would have been devastating," said Schweigart.

He said after the wet season ends, the district will probably allow the lake level to creep into the 17 foot level.

The district tries to keep the lake level at or below 15.5 feet during the wet summer months to lessen potential damage and danger if a hurricane strikes.

Crash leaves youth dead

BELLE GLADE - A 16-year old boy died early Saturday morning after his car was crushed by a tractor trailer rig traveling east on state road 80.

According to police, Frank A. Garcia of 1749 NE Avenue J, apparently entered the highway without stopping at the end of Tabi Road at about 1 a.m.

His sports car was hit and crushed by a vegetable truck driven by Willie Pat Wilkins, 57, of Alabama.

Garcia was dead at the scene. Traffic was routed around the accident for seven hours.

Budget readjustment leaves streets short, again

BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade City Commission Tuesday, May 31, adopted a resolution which adjusted its 1982-1983 budget, but Commissioner George Goforth expressed concern over cuts to the street repair portions of the budget.

The administration expects revenues to fall short this year by about $96,000, and revised departmental budgets to make up for the deficit. City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang, Jr. told the commissioners.

The budget passed last fall was just over five million dollars. The revision drops those expenditures to $4,982,404.

Strang said every department head was asked to cut things from their budgets to make up the deficit. In the process, the approximately $105,000 budgeted for street repairs was cut to about $50,000.

That brought protests from Goforth.

"I get tired of streets being the slashing board every year," said Goforth.

Strang explained he expects the city will pick up about $30,000, and the commissioners told him to put that into streets unless given the commission's permission to do otherwise.

No capital outlays had been deleted in the budget revision because most departments had already purchased the items, said Strang.

ing from the jobs program, about $187,000, was "roughly equivalent" to 14 percent of the county's allocation of the program's funds.

He suggested Harvin might want to point that out and suggest it as a formula. He also asked if Harvin thought every eligible city in the county would be seeking funds through the program.

Harvin said he was "banking heavily" that many cities wouldn't be seeking funds, and Altman said Harvin might want to suggest that the share of funds not used by cities that chose not participate could be divided between those that do chose to participate.

Altman also said he didn't think the time allotted to come up with proposals was adequate.

"I can't imagine cities, I can't imagine the county even, responding to this time deadline in a way to do it justice," he said.

Goforth and City Manager W.E. "Tom" Strang said they both felt Harvin did a good job considering his time constraints.

"AND WHAT NOT"

I was voted most unlikely

I guess most of us can remember our high school graduation night. I came down with a terrible cold. It was the draft from all those robes whipping past me on their way to pick up the scholarships, trophies, and awards.

I had expected to get the prize for "most improved bus student," but they didn't have one. I also could have won the trophy for the perfect record in bringing lunch money if I hadn't been a dime short one day in my sophomore year. Anyway, they were nice enough to save me a seat in the spectators' gallery.

I spent the evening unravelling my tassel and wishing I'd brought a book along or else just stopped in to pick up my diploma on the way to the movies.

The only thing eventful happening in my row was that the girl next to me thought she was going to throw up. Turned out she was four months pregnant. And why not. Wasn't she voted the most popular girl in the class?

I was one of 100 graduates that year. A winner, a runner-up and 98 also ran. We had to practice sprinting up to the podium and catching our diplomas on the fly so they could hold the program down to 90 minutes. Last year the school had a class of 700 and they scheduled graduation Monday at 8 p.m. with a lunch break on Tuesday.

Back in those days, the valedictorian was always a girl. Armed with 27 scholarships, she moved on to the heady heights of academia to prepare for a brilliant career or her choice: teaching kindergarten or becoming a secretary. Had she been a boy, she could have scored 75 and gone in for brain surgery or international jurisprudence. Discrimination in those days only meant you had the good taste to know what jobs women weren't suited for. The Queen of England would have been a man if it could have been arranged. Barbara Walters would have been ABC's receptionist.

Our valedictorian was Verna Vornoguelo. I guess she knew she was getting a bunch of scholarships because she brought a shopping bag to graduation. But I think even she was surprised at winning a football scholarship to MIT. I figure if she cashed in on all those awards she must be working toward her fifteenth PhD about now, despite her old football injury.

It's funny looking back on who was voted most likely for what, you know. Rod Worthing was most likely to succeed. Eventually, of course, he didn't succeed and the FBI caught up with him. The title should have been shared by Wanda Listless and Dixie Dandy — but who knew it then? Wanda had straight hair and peered through eyeglasses as thick as incense. She was so tall her robe only came to the top of her knee sox. Didn't even have style enough to dye her white sneakers black for the occasion. But she began dabbling in pumpkin futures and made a fortune. Dixie dabbled in husbands and parlayed two divorces into a long-term future with a titled billionaire.

I was voted most unlikely in my class. When I asked "Unlikely to what?" the answer was, "You name it."

At my last class reunion I was shocked to learn I was the only member who wasn't earning at least fifty thou, to have a winter place in the Caribbean, or lie like blazes. But I know now where I went wrong. My fellow graduates gained something priceless from the commencement speaker. Spurred on by his words of wisdom, they reached the pinnacle of success. As for me, standing on the threshold of life, ready to knock on the door of the future, and face the challenges ahead, I failed to grasp the truth and import of his message. Actually, I fell asleep sometime during the salutatorian's address, as I recall.

Floodplain management workshop planned

There will be a Floodplain Management Workshop for lenders (July 7) and a workshop for architects and builders (July 8) in Orlando, at the Sheraton Orlando International.

As such, the audience should consist of: July 7, 1983: lenders of banks, credit unions, mortgage brokers, and savings & loans; July 8, 1983: architects, builders and other applicable sources.

Each workshop lasts for six hours. There are no registration/tuition costs for the workshop but each student will be responsible for their travel, lodging and meal expenses. After completion of the course, the student will receive a certificate. Students will need to register by contacting the County Civil Defense office or Mike McDonald with the NFIP in Tallahassee: (904) 488-9210.

So, what's wrong with cleanup of city?

The Belle Glade city commission recently gave City Planning Director Renar M. Harvin permission to seek federal funding, through the emergency jobs bill, for three projects: sidewalk construction, a clean-up project in the southwest section, and the construction of a 'tot lot.'

The projects gained the commission's unanimous approval, although the mayor voiced concern with the clean-up project, and a tree planting project which was dropped, because he felt they were a misuse of public funds.

As Commissioner William A. Grear put it, "Then how're we gonna get it cleaned up?"

True, there may be other, more pressing needs the city could use funds for, even in the same areas targeted for the clean-up. But, bear in mind that the use of these funds have to comply with federal guidelines.

A clean-up may not be the southwest section's most pressing need, but it is a need and, according to Harvin, it does comply with federal regulations.

We think a beautification project of this sort is an appropriate use of public funds. Not every tax dollar has to be spent on construction or police or fire protection or services.

Those things are very important, but the aesthetic quality of life is important also. If money is made available to help improve the surroundings of citizens, why not take advantage of it?

If there were no guidelines on how to use the money, or if Harvin was even given more time to develop more and different proposals for funding under the program, we think the mayor's objections to the clean-up could have been more pertinent.

But, with less than a month to develop proposals, and with the scope of what he can propose limited, we think Harvin did well and had the best interest of the city in mind in developing his proposals.

The bill is designed to create jobs for individuals long out of work. Harvin is also using it to create a better way of life in a blighted area.

No fish in the lake? Biologist says there are 40 tons of them!

Lake Okeechobee doesn't seem in any danger of running out of fish any time in the near future. The Big Lake contains approximately 40 tons of fish. Duncan Powell, chief biologist for the Florida Game and Freshwater Fish Commission, told guests at the 17th Annual Harold DeTar Fly Fishing Tournament in Lakeport Wednesday, May 25.

What's more, most fish have a tremendous reproductive capability and can regenerate 50 percent of their population within a year, he said. Especially prolific are shell cracker and blue gill.

With continued high water in the lake, "we will have another great fishing year" for large mouth bass and black crappie, Powell said.

In 1982, there were over 90,000 bass caught on the lake — not a particularly large number, considering there are an estimated 4 to 6 million bass in the lake.

There could be problems in the future with black crappie and large mouth bass, however, because of low lake levels in 1981, which impaired the spawning of these fish.

Black crappie, which spawn between 10 and 14 million, have a five-year life span. With a poor spawning year in 1981, Powell predicted that there would be few large black crappie caught in 1986.

Many large black crappie will be caught in 1985 and black crappie fishing will begin improving again after 1986, he said.

Over half the fish in Lake Okeechobee are game fish. The majority of these are found in the bull rushes and sed grass, he said.

Mature adults are more likely to be found in the peppergrass and bull rushes, he said. The lake has over 50,000 acres of marshes, which provide the best fish habitat, he said.

Fish will stay in their grassy habitats until the water drops below 15 inches, he said.

Hydrilla makes excellent fish habitat, but is a problem that must be addressed within the next five years, he said.

Hydrilla's prodigious growth (a single plant can grow up to one foot a day) makes it a threat to take over the lake. Hydrilla becomes so thick that it is impossible to fish in.

Final crop certification

According to Marie L. Wilkins, county executive director of the fits, acreage history and base protection," she said.

Wilkins said farmers should call and schedule an appointment prior to their visit so they can be served efficiently. For more information call the ASCS Office at 996-7900.

Eckert plans camp for disadvantaged

An effort is underway to purchase a South Florida wilderness camp site for emotionally disturbed youngsters.

The Jack and Ruth Eckerd Foundation, which already operates 11 such camps in four states, is hopeful that with the backing of a group of Dade, Monroe, Broward and Palm Beach county citizens, funds can be found to purchase a site within a 90-minute drive of Miami.

Jack Eckerd, the drug store founder, who started the wilderness camp program 15 years ago to help troubled boys and girls, has pledged $300,000 toward the purchase price of the large plot of land in Hendry County. But it will take nearly double that amount to buy the land and get the South Florida Wilderness Camp into operation.

A committee of well-known South Floridians has formed to help raise the additional funds needed. Prominent on the committee are a group of environmentalists who had earlier opposed such a site in Chekika State Park near Homestead. Now activists like Marjorie Stoneman Douglas, of Friends of the Everglades; Dr. Robert Kelley, of the Tropical Audubon Society; and environmental spokeswoman Mary-Therese Delate are active on the South Florida Wilderness Camp Committee, along with such Dade Countians as Mayor Steve Clark, Commissioner Ruth Shack, George and Karen Ford, Michael Elyan, Xavier Suarez, former Judge Ed Cowart, Judges Bill Gladstone, Seymour Gelber and Sidney Shapiro, Nick Buoniconti, Mrs. Ruth Kassewitz and dozens of others.

The Eckerd Foundation had at first hoped to have a camp in Dade County because every six weeks campers return home to spend several days with their families and driving proximity becomes important. Because of expensive land costs, the closest site that would be within financial limitations and provide sufficient space was in Hendry County near Alligator Alley. The 3314.

Miami business consultant Ron Levitt, who is coordinating activities for the Eckerd Foundation in South Florida, said that it is hoped the land can be purchased this summer and work on the South Florida Camp can begin shortly thereafter. The South Florida camp is temporarily housed on a smaller site in Homestead leased from the Miami Baptist Association. That site-47 acres-is too small to accommodate the wilderness camp program.

The wilderness camps are designed to serve children between the ages of 7 and 17, who have been professionally diagnosed as having emotional problems. Prospective campers—some of whom live at the camps for periods of one or two years—are initially referred by local child care agencies, Health and Rehabilitation Services, school systems, private psychologists, psychiatrists, judges or other counselors.

The wilderness camps offer a residential, therapeutic treatment program for the troubled youngsters, utilizing a camp setting as an alternative to institutionalization. Located in forest settings of up to 800 acres, the youngsters—living in small groups with trained counselors—set goals by working and learning in an environment that demands cooperation and self-reliance. Prospective campers—some of whom live at the camps for periods of one or two years—are initially referred by local child care agencies, Health and Rehabilitation Services, school systems, private psychologists, psychiatrists, judges or other counselors.

The Eckerd Foundation currently manages wilderness camps in North Carolina, Vermont, Rhode Island and in Florida at Silver Springs, Milton, Floral City and Brooksville. In each of the areas, the Eckerd Foundation has agreed to fund half of the start up costs with local residents donating the balance. Contributions for the South Florida site can be sent to South Florida Wilderness Camp, Post Office Box 145313, Coral Gables, Fla. 33114.

Best platoon returns from camp

Third Platoon COB(P) 1st BN 124th Infantry Florida Army National Guard (Belle Glade), recently returned from two weeks of training at Camp Blanding, Florida. The Platoon was led by 1LT John W. Evans, Platoon Leader.

Third Platoon captured the following award: Best Infantry Platoon in the 1st BN 124th Infantry. Third Platoon is part of COB (West Palm Beach), which captures seven of eleven Awards at Annual Training '83.

The training consisted of the strongest Infantry tactics, utilizing blanks, lasers, live ammunition, automobile operations, physical fitness tests, forced road marches, night ambushes and individual soldier tasks rounded out the training.

The following individuals are members of Third Platoon: 1LT John W. Evans, PSG Thomas E. Pierson, SSG William Daniels, SSG Michael Marr, SGT Ozell Gary, SGT Willie Alexander, SGT William Case, SGT Larry Johnson, SGT Dean Terrell, CPL Warren Street, SP4 Wiley Battle, SP4 Kelly Ellington, SP4 Jerry Ervin, SP4 Steven McBride, SP4 Joseph Walker, SP4 Victor Roas, SP4 James Henry Thomas, PFC Johnny B. Battle Jr., PFC Calvin Key, PFC Larry Austin, PFC Charles McDonald, PFC Jose Ramos, PFC Randy Worth, PFC Scott W. Daniels, PV2 Sylvester Rossi, PV2 Paulino Rodriguez, PV2 Anastasio Rodriguez, PV2 Clifford Salter, PV2 Kenneth Sullivan Jr., PV2 Danny Summerville, PV2 Joseph Jeffers and PV2 David Lee Walls.

When we were all together, Friday, May 27, 1983, our last day of being sophomores at Glades Day School, we never thought it would be our final time together with you, but we were mistaken.

Growing up, football games and upcoming senior prom, all of these are assumed part of your life together with us, but again, we were mistaken.

Seeing you walk down the aisle with your new cap and gown at graduation and then as a newly wedded groom was all expected of you. Now the class of '85 have been mistaken. For you to be matched away from us so suddenly, like a song unfinished, yet to be sung.

It feels like a cruel joke. It seems so unfair for you to be gone. We, your classmates, keep expecting to see you appear on the sidelines at a game or at bat, or shuffling down the basketball court, always aiming for a victory. Or to see your car go cruising by on the highway or by the timesaver at lunch, yet we realize we never will.

Maybe your being taken away was for a reason, maybe not. Whatever the cost, it has well been over paid in sorrow.

We only hope one day the answer to all our questions will be revealed.

Right now, losing you is cruel and very unfair. The class of '85 only wishes we could share one more moment with you to tell you how very special you are in our lives. You really meant a lot.

We, the class of '85, will always love you, will miss you, and always cherish the memories. God bless you and your family. Laid to rest in peace, ut never to be forgotten.

Your classmates of 1985 love you, Frankie.

Pioneer—

Now, Pioneer is a bulk automobile parts business that caters to large growers and other agricultural interests.

"There weren't any big cooperative growers back then," said Pate. "Nobody knew that farming would be done by big cooperatives."

S.C. Pate came to work for Will in 1938. Now he owns the business and is moving it across the street to more spacious quarters.

Will eventually let Pate buy half of Pioneer Motors from him but Pate says their relationship was never one of true partners.

"Our relationship was really never one of partners," said Pate. "It was more of a father-son relationship. In all the years we were partners, we never had an argument that I can recall. I think that's something special."

"He (Will) never backed out of the business," Pate continued. "He was always involved. He just let me operate it the way I thought was best."

After Will's death in 1977, Pate purchased the other half of the company from the Will heirs.

"Now I own the place. I was just out of high school," said Pate. "This is the only job I ever had."

Since then, he and his family have operated it.

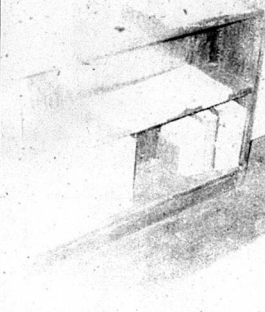

Pate can recall Will working on the cracker histories of the Glades.

"He'd drive all over the area, talking and interviewing people for his books. I'm not saying it's all 100 percent facts (in the books), but not too many people argue with it," said Pate.

In his final years, Will had a home in West Palm Beach, but he frequently stayed at his room above Pioneer Motors.

That's where he wrote the cracker history of the Glades.

Pate said he isn't sure what he intends to do with the old building or Will's old room. "I'm open to suggestions," Pate said.

BOOKS ON FREEMASONRY still sit on the bookshelf in Lawrence Will's old rooms.

Haitians graduate from course

Joe Picklesimer, the new director of West Technical Education Center, awarded Certificates of Completion on May 26, to a class of Haitian students who have successfully completed their program.

January 3, 1983, West Technical Education Center began a 21 week program for 14 Haitians. The program was funded by CETA through the Hispanic Human Resources Agency. Chantal Thomas was assigned as an Occupational Specialist to remain on campus and to act as interpreter when needed.

For the first 11 weeks the students were in an Agriculture Machinery class with Noma Norman as instructor. Each day, one and one-half hours was spent in the I.M.T.S. (Industrial Manpower Training Systems) Lab learning English with David Thomas and Mrs. Marie Hill. Some of the students returned in the evening for more English.

After 9 weeks, a second group replaced these students in Norman's class. The original group transferred to Joe Harrison, who teaches heavy equipment, for half a day. The remainder of the day was spent in the I.M.T.S. Learning Lab working on Math, Language, Employability and Living Skills.

Some of the students who had different goals were allowed, with permission of shop instructors, to familiarize themselves with the shop of their choice.

They intend to continue their Vocational Education at West Tech.

Thomas has been active in contacting local business men and possibilities of job placement looks encouraging. It is felt by participating personnel that this program, in teaching English and Job Skills to a foreign born group in a short time, has been successful.

Public phones are emergency link

Few people realize that more than 66,000 coin telephones in Florida are available for use without depositing a coin 24 hours a day for reporting emergencies.

"As a result of a program which started in 1973, today all of Southern Bell's coin and charge-call phones serve as a valuable emergency communication link," said Southern Bell Local Manager, Bob White. "This service, known as dial tone first, provides immediate dial tone when the public telephone receiver is picked up. Callers can then reach the operator by dialing '0' or go directly to 911 if available without depositing any money."

White points out that this service can save valuable time which could be lost looking for a coin. Dial tone first provides the customer with several other advantages. For example, after picking up the receiver, callers immediately know whether the phone is in working order without risking a coin. Also, callers can reach telephone repair service, directory assistance and the Southern Bell business office on a coin-free or coin-return basis.

White said, "We want everyone to be aware of dial tone first since it can be a significant help in an emergency situation."
